

A fascinating and compelling account of over 30 years of distinguished service by the Royal Air Force Armoured Cars operating in Iraq, Jordan, Syria, Palestine, Aden, Egypt, Libya and Tunisia

Drawing on official records, personal diaries, letters and reminiscences, as well as the Author's interviews with officers and airmen who served on the Royal Air Force Armoured Cars

Written by the RAF Regiment's Official Historian, Dr Nigel Warwick

"... it was only our Armoured Car screen that saved the fighter force from being wiped out on the ground by enemy land forces."

Air Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder,
AOC-in-C RAF Middle East

"They were all rogues, God bless them, for whom the War had come as an eleventh hour reprieve. They were the sort of men to whom legend clung like the cloak of Mephistopheles."

Captain Somerset de Chair,
Intelligence Officer, 'Kingcol'

"The elegant 'Silver Ghosts' played their part in desert warfare as grim determined knights in armour, known to their great hearted and gallant crews as 'The Old Tin Trams.' They were indeed modern ships of the desert, each with its name, its individuality, its crew and its own battle honours of years of faithful service in every place."

Squadron Leader G. Elliot Godsave
Deputy Commander, Armoured Car Wing

"I really enjoyed those days. Somehow it was my life; it was something that gave you a bit of zest. Almost every day was exciting..."

Leading Aircraftman Vic Morte,
No 2 Armoured Car Company

The story covers not only the political, strategic and tactical context of operations, but also gives the view from the turret and driver's seat of the car commanders, gunners, wireless operators and fitters...
